An election is a formal decision making process in which people choose their political leaders. Every year, our school conducts an election for the student's council. Every class sends one member to the council. Each contestant fills in the form and takes signatures of two supporters. Thereafter, the campaigns start.

On the day of the election, class teachers give each learner a ballot paper. It contains the photos and names of the candidates. You put a tick or leave the box blank against the name of the candidate, fold the ballot paper and drop it in the ballot box.

All the students cast their votes and the teachers count them before the head teacher declares the winners as the class representatives.

The class representatives gather in the assembly hall and elect the general secretary. Then all the class representatives and the general secretary form the committee for sports and cultural activities.
