One Friday afternoon, the P.7 pupils and their teachers sat in Tororo Town Main Hall to discuss activities they would do in the holidays.

Apio Salume was the first to speak. She said that she was going to bake cakes and sell them to the people in her town since she had learnt about baking with her teacher in primary six.

Opio said that he was going to help his father on the farm to look after cows, goats and sheep. Awori responded that she learnt knitting and making crafts from her aunt. They would make sweaters, bags, shoes and decorate them with beads.

Samuel was known as a cartoonist in the class. He told the class that he would go on with it to perfect his skills. Nyachwo the humblest girl in the class answered that she was going to help her father in the shop and improve on her counting skills since she wants to become a banker.

Finally, Mr. Oketch James the class teacher thanked the pupils for their holiday plans and he urged them to put their talents and skills to good use. He advised them never to despise any kind of skill one has.
